

Open Source Seed (OSS) Licence – license agreement

Preamble

By acquiring and using the seeds purchased under the terms and conditions of this license agreement you, as the Licensee, accept the provisions of this license agreement. The purpose of these provisions is the free use of seeds. The Licensor is the natural or legal person who hands over these seeds to you. The Beneficiary of the license agreement is Seedsol.org, a registered association acting as a Seed Commons. In order to achieve the objective of free use, enhancement, cultivation, dissemination and propagation of seeds, without there being a monopoly taken advantage of by individuals, any use of the seeds is only permissible in accordance with these licensing provisions. As a Licensee, you undertake to limit the use of these seeds or the propagation of them and enhancements vis-à-vis third parties exclusively to the manner stipulated in this license.

You will in particular refrain from making any claim to plant variety rights, patent rights or any other statutorily possible exclusivity rights of the seeds or their propagation and enhancements.

Simultaneously, the licensing provisions oblige you, in turn, to subject any seeds or enhancements of the seeds obtained from the present seeds to these licensing provisions, and only to pass them on to third parties on these conditions (“copyleft”). Should you infringe the obligations arising from this license agreement, you will forfeit your rights of use of the seeds or any seeds or enhancements obtained therefrom. In addition, the Beneficiary shall, in such cases, be entitled to require you to cease and desist and make a payment, as stipulated in this agreement (agreement to the benefit of third parties).

1. Definitions

The following definitions apply to this license:

1.1 Seeds: Seeds within the meaning of this agreement, shall mean, dormant generative reproductive organs, such as seeds, fruits, pseudo-fruits, fruit clusters or parts thereof, as well as any vegetative plant organs from which whole plants can be generated – by whatever method –, as well as pollen, and all informational components therein, which have in each case been placed on the market under the terms and conditions contained in this license or has been obtained from such seeds through propagation or has been enhanced.

1.2 Propagation: Propagation shall mean any type of reproduction, i.e. the new or further generation of seeds. Propagation shall also include technical methods of extracting genetic information for the purpose of generating seeds with certain characteristics, including any methods that are unknown today.

2. Scope of the license rights

(1) Upon the materialization of the license agreement, the Licensee will be granted the right to use all the seeds, as he or she has received them, under the terms and conditions of this license.

(2) The seeds may be used for any purpose, and by anyone who accepts the terms and conditions of this license, in particular also for enhancement.

(3) The Licensee may pass on the seeds to others, propagate them, enhance them and disseminate propagated or enhanced seeds, however only on the condition that he or she provides a copy of this license agreement to all other parties to whom he or she disseminates such seeds, which will also legally bind any third parties to this license agreement, and provides the Beneficiary, with evidence of having done so upon request. This legal binding of said parties may be carried out in writing or verbally, or by way of an implicit declaration of consent on the part of such third party. Enhancements are, after being disseminated, to be regarded as “seeds” within the meaning of this license.

(4) The copyleft principle obliges the Licensee to impose the same rights and obligations on the future owners of the seeds, any seeds propagated from the latter or enhancements of the seeds as he or she personally acquired and assumed. Any limitation of the rights in the seeds vis-à-vis third parties going beyond that, in particular any limitation based on statutorily granted special protective rights (plant variety rights, patent rights, trademark rights, copyrights, etc.) is prohibited and illegitimate.

3. Plant material index

(1) The Beneficiary may provide its own plant material index, in which all groupings of seeds

(identified according to characterization criteria) and their enhancements are included. Any enhancements undertaken by the Licensee have to be provided to the Beneficiary in the form of a viable and propagatable seed sample for incorporation into the plant material index.

(2) The plant material index will be published by the Beneficiary on its website once it has been prepared.

(3) The use of any varieties and enhancements that are included in this plant material index may not be limited in any way other than through the provisions of this license agreement.

(4) The origin and properties of the material will be published by the Beneficiary in the plant material index, and can be reviewed there at any time.

4. Rights of third parties and governmental prohibitions

Should the Licensee be obliged to deviate from these licensing provisions, based on rights of third parties or governmental prohibitions, in whole or in part, when utilizing the seeds, he or she may only use the seeds and propagations thereof for personal, non-commercial purposes.

5. Lapse of the rights upon infringing the licensing provisions

(1) Should the Licensee infringe these licensing provisions, his or her rights of use of the seeds or their enhancements will lapse immediately. A claim may in particular be made against the Licensee by the Beneficiary, to ceasing and desisting from disseminating the seeds, propagating the seeds or enhancing the seeds as well as to compensate damages.

(2) The expiry of the rights of use in accordance with paragraph 1 shall not have any influence upon the rights of other users, as long as the latter do not infringe the licensing provisions themselves.

6. Applicable law, place of jurisdiction, any other provisions

(1) These licensing provisions shall be subject to JAPAN Law. Referenced to German Law.

(2) Should one of the above clauses transpire to be invalid, it shall not affect the validity of the remainder of these licensing provisions.

(3) Should the Licensee be a trader, legal person under public law or special public law funds, the place of jurisdiction shall be Berlin.

(4) The Beneficiary shall be entitled to assign its rights arising from this agreement in writing to third parties at any time.

(5) Should one of the provisions of this license agreement be or become invalid, ineffective or unenforceable, this shall not affect the validity of the remaining licensing provisions.

Rather, the provision concerned shall be replaced by a valid and effective provision which comes closest to the economic intention of the contracting parties, in particular the objectives of the license agreement laid down in the recitals.

Appendix to the Open Source Seed (OSS) license.

In order to be able to provide anyone with the rights to freely use the seeds in accordance with these licensing provisions, every time the seeds are passed on the following or a substantially equivalent reference to the applicability of this license and its source is to be displayed clearly and attached.
